NAVCO ANNOUNCES NEW 360-DEGREE CAMERA SOLUTION

Total Vision 360 Provides Complete Situational Awareness

ANAHEIM, Calif. (March 27, 2007) – NAVCO, a leading national system integrator of electronic security systems and network communications, today announces Total Vision 360, a new 360-degree camera and recorder solution. The Total Vision 360 represents the most advanced technology available today because it works in concert with existing DVR based systems, allowing retailers to eliminate blind spots and add complete situational awareness of every incident, recorded and live.

NAVCO's new Total Vision 360 revolutionizes surveillance with a full 360-degree scene investigation playback feature. Customers can review an event over and over again and objects, text and faces can be enhanced to an equivalent of seven time's optical zoom, to reveal added details. Total Vision 360 uses solid state mega-pixel technology, allowing complete documentation of a 360-degree field of view with absolutely no moving parts, and no blind spots.

The Total Vision 360 also includes powerful video analytics that include video motion tracking and scene analysis. When an incident occurs, users can go back in time and review a scene as if it was live, for up to two months afterwards. Users can also pinpoint a specific object or person and follow its steps throughout a store, bank, restaurant or any other venue via video playback. The Total Vision 360 tells the entire story, and customers can use their fixed cameras for closer up positive identification use.

“We’re thrilled to be able to offer this advanced enhancement to our customers’ existing video systems,” said Jim Kauker, executive vice president of sales and marketing at NAVCO. “Our new Total Vision 360 will save our customers thousands of hours in review time of their video archives. This technology is where high definition is going and we’re the only company I’m aware of that can integrate them with existing systems seamlessly because of our long term investment in a software platform that can “talk” to multiple brands of DVRs. Combined with our previously announced DVR rental program, customers can not only use this technology to start saving money today, but they can also be reassured of replacement systems every three years for the latest technology.”
