“We have worked closely with NAVCO for many years. Buying the right product was important to us, but we also wanted to make sure it was installed properly. You can hang a camera on a wall and think it's OK, but if you don't position it properly, the video you capture won't provide the optimal coverage.”

Managing their system through remote access, cut travel time in half for Chevron!

Chevron Reduces Costs Through Remote Access

As one of the world's largest integrated energy companies, Chevron owns and operates over 5,000 franchised stores nationwide. When Chevron's in-store security systems fell short of providing the necessary reliability, ease-of-use, remote access to video footage, employee safety and efficiency, the company looked to NAVCO to upgrade existing video systems to include high definition cameras across Chevron's U.S.-based network.

The new video security system also provides remote access as well as robust POS searches and exceptions. It reduces inventory shrink, and paves the way for an all-IP solution across the Chevron store network.
